Fontana girl's vision for park wins

Pepsi money will spruce up Cucamonga-Guasti Park

This is Elizabeth Wakefield's version of a neat park. She is 9 years old and from Fontana.

Elizabeth was rewarded with her vision recently as she was one of 11 San Bernardino County youngsters honored by Pepsi-Cola Co. at Cucamonga-Guasti Regional Park in Ontario.

It was all part of a contest called "Picture Yourself in a Pepsi Playpark." Pepsi plans on donating money to 16 play parks in San Bernardino, Los Angeles, Riverside and Orange counties. Cucamonga-Guasti is one of the parks.

More than 3,000 Southern California children aged 5 to 12 drew their versions of parks. Judges picked the winners based on originality, appropriateness to the theme and human interest.

In addition to Elizabeth, winners at the local park included Maria Estevez and Deanna Rodriguez, both of Pomona; Susan Gandara, La Verne; John Zotelo, Montclair; Jennifer Barber, Upland; Alicia Trujillo, Colton; Jennifer Leman, Chino Hills; Jason Bosch, Chino; Lee Ann Brewer, Highland; and Ailene Padilla,

All winners get free passes to Sea World in San Diego.

proposed housing Council says no

By Kathy Betts

A housing tract developer was complimented for rallying residents to Upland City Hall recently, yet apparently he misread their wishes.

In the end, City Council members unanimously voted against a required zone change from open space/light industrial to residential to allow 101 homes on the northwest corner of Benson Avenue and 16th Street.

Three residents, appearing to represent at least 20 of their neighbors, told council members that they experience extreme traffic and noise in their $300,000-plus homes near the vacant corner and Cable Airport.

Although one man believed that the proposed housing tract would not be as bad as an industrial or commercial development on the vacant corner, all three public protesters pleaded that measures be taken to make their present homes more liveable.

Rock and gravel trucks speeding over Benson's 45 mph limit, sirens at a nearby water treatment plant throughout the night and wind blowing dirt through their windows were among the woes they sited.

"An industrial or commercial development may not be the answer, but I don't think residential is either," said Councilman Thomas McGilloway after their testimony

Cable Airport officials, who protested residential development there for safety reasons, would be agreeable to industrial or commercial uses, said Bill Blanchard, Cable's planning director. In 1987, a mixed industrial/commercial development was proposed but voted down by the Planning Commission.

McGilloway that night complimented Benson 16 Partners for "a good job in rallying neighbors to get out here, (though they) misread

County fair offers new, old attractions

Exhibition buildings renovated

By Jessica Ellman

The last Los Angeles County Fair of the '80s opened Sept. 14 with a new circus, special Senior Focus days and theme weekends.

Many "America's County Fair" favorites also returned, such as the lumberjacks, the razorback pig races, Ray Cammack's carnival rides and more than 100 contests, including hog calling, ice cream eating, barbecuing, chili cooking, milk drinking, twins and triplets and mother-daughter look-alikes and a diaper derby.

A parade marked opening day; fireworks are entertaining each night and the Pomona Invitational Handicap thoroughbred race will highlight closing day.

The nation's largest county fair is boasting four renovated exhibition buildings, new plazas, fountains, flower beds and lighting and a redesigned pedestrian tunnel at the Park Avenue entrance.

Animals with two legs, four legs, beaks, fur, horns and curly tails once again are filling the pavilions and giving city slickers a taste of farming life. The petting farm has returned, giving children the chance to meet farm friends up close.

Ralph Hinds, Los Angeles County Fair Association president, said he hopes for high attendance, but said the most important thing is for everyone to enjoy themselves.

"You look back at the end of the 18 days and hope the majority of people had a good time and we had a safe fair," he said.

Last year, the fair attracted 1,378,885 visitors, marking the 40th time in the past 41 years that fair attendance has topped the one million mark.

-Ralph Hinds

Of the new attractions, Hinds said he is proudest of the $12 million landscaping and pavilion renewal.

"It will be more attractive with the flower beds and fountain, but it will also make people more comfortable," he said.

The "Old Time American Circus" is a new feature and is running at 4, 6 and 8 p.m. weekdays and at 2, 4, 6 and 8 p.m. on weekends.

Under the 80-by-120-foot tent, an elephant is performing ballet, a world record-holder is juggling a 130-pound table with his feet and clowns and a ringmaster are entertaining the crowd.

The fair is making a concerted effort to welcome senior citizens this year and has special seniors' events scheduled each Monday and Tuesday.

On Mondays, seniors can compete in bingo from 10 a.m. to noon and from 2 to 4 p.m. A seniors' arts and crafts fair also will be offered from noon to 2 p.m. on Sept. 25.

Senior bingo returns Sept. 26. Also on Tuesday, a senior entertainment program is planned from 2 to 5 p.m. and a senior baked goods display from noon to 2 p.m.

The Senior Focus days will climax with a senior ballroom dance contest Tuesday, beginning at 2 p.m.

Also new this year are theme weekends. Opening weekend featured fiddlers competing for $1,500 in prizes. Divisions include fiddles, guitars and other assorted instruments.

This weekend features the annual Pacific Coast Clogging Contest, offering $100, $200 and $500 prizes.

The fair's closing weekend, Sept. 30 and Oct. 1, will highlight the mariachi bands Superior Mariachis, Los Nobles, Ballet California and Trio Veracruz.

The fair also has a new dog show featuring canine competitions daily.

All kinds of food vendors have returned this year, from the standbys of corn dogs and lemonade to the international tastes of German, Chinese, Greek, Japanese, Cajun and Mexican dishes.

The fair's wine judging competition also celebrates its 50th year. All wines entered are from California and are displayed in the Agricultural Pavilion. Medal winners, which were chosen last month, can be sampled for a fee.

And, because this year the fair's mascot, Thummer, is a real pig, a special swine exhibit is being offered to explain different species and pig byproducts.

Gates open at 10 a.m. Monday through Friday, and at 9 a.m. on weekends. Closing time is 10 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and 11 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

neighbors' wishes."

At last month's commission meeting, residents did favor more homes near them so they wouldn't feel isolated.

Yet McGilloway noted that that neighborhood also would be isolated from the city and from their neighborhood due to a buffer wall.

Putting another residential development there when nearby homeowners call their situation

"ridiculous" does not make sense, he and other council members said.

Mayor Robert Nolan and Councilman Al Canestro also argued that the proposed 7,500square-foot lots were incompatible with most of the 226 surrounding homes.

They favored minimum 15,000square-foot lots there, though that point was moot after the developer's proposed zone change was voted down.

6th-graders see Bush address on the mild side

Some call it 'dumb'; others listen

By J. Rezendes-Herrick

Dawnelle Braga's pale blue eyes hardened while describing her decision to never do drugs.

'My mom says she knows people who took drugs, her friend was almost killed, so she tells me don't take them." said the 11-year-old Cucamonga Junior High School student. "I think that's good. I don't feel like dying at a young age.'

Braga joined more than 200 sixth-graders in watching President Bush's nationally televised anti-drug message on the morning of Sept. 12. Students offered mixed reviews when asked about the White House speech.

"He's the president. Most people listen to him," said Chris Scott. "They get the message easier."

"A lot of the kids think it was dumb," countered Gloria Cruz. "Lots of the kids said he said it because he wants to get publicity — it makes everybody like him," added Yaw Amponsah.

School officials said the address was just another step in the march against drugs.

'The American public is becoming aware that it's not an isolated problem with somebody else's children," said Rick Andrew, the school's sixth-grade counselor. "It could be your own child or the child next door who you never expected of using drugs. The president is mirroring the issue of people becoming much more aware of it.'

Some youngsters bought Bush's message.

"He's trying not to have kids sell drugs and on drugs," said Cortland Witherspoon.

'He said not to drop out of school," added Keith Berry. "He said if you know anybody that's doing it talk to them and tell them not to do it.'

Others did not.

Gloria Cruz, 11, and a sixth grader at Cucamonga Junior High School, gives her opinion of President Bush's anti-drug speech that students watched on TV

"Most were not paying attention. They were just talking to friends," said Adam Holguin. 'They probably think they've heard everything. They've heard all about drugs from their parents.

Andrew said Cucamonga's anti-drug efforts include special programs and counselors who regularly visit the campus. The campaign has yielded dividends during his more than three years at the campus.

'I can see a change in the attitude toward drugs," Andrew said. "They don't seem to be as accepted. It's not in or cool.

Some youngsters offered suggestions to combat illicit drug use.

Show them people who take drugs and what it looks like, what it can do," Dawnelle said.

'If it was one of my friends, I'd try to tell them not to take drugs," Adam added.

Some new features will be added with the money from Pepsi, said Steve Messerli, director of regional parks for San Bernardino County.

Messerli said he hopes the equipment will be upgraded and added by the end of the year.

Tye Kitasato, assistant park superintendent, says the new playground equipment will definitely be safer and better looking than the current

The addition of the Cucamonga-Guasti for three years and says the 22-acre park is in good condition overall.

"(The equipment) will be a nice focal point when you walk into the park," he said.

Cucamonga-Guasti Regional Park, on Archibald Avenue between Fourth and G streets in Ontario, is visited by about 250,000 people a year, said P.R. Beaman of the parks department.

Officials are counting on the new playground equipment to supplement the other features

Upland protest prompts review of dam project

By Kathy Betts

Angry residents have prompted the Army Corps of Engineers to start another environmental review of their intensified San Antonio Dam excavation project.

Since 1966, the Corps has issued a contract to Uplandbased Intravaia Rock & Sand to continually remove debris from the dam. That activity increased six-fold this year as Intravaia and its new partner, Covina-based Aman Bros., strive to bring the dam back to Corps-required flood-control levels.

Sheila Murphy, an environmental protection specialist with the Corps, said the federal agency conducts environmental assessments of ongoing maintenance work at the dam every five years with the last assessment completed in 1984. However, Murphy said "controversy" would require another environmental assessment to be made.

Ken Miller, San Bernardino County's director of transportation/flood control, said he was told a public meeting would be held in October by the Corps so that residents could give input to the three-to-fourmonth environmental re assessment.

"I believe the focus will be trucks, dust, noise and biological aspects" of the "heightened level of activity" at and around the dam, he said. "I think the concerns of residents has spurred this to happen right

North Upland residents and those just beyond in San Antonio Heights have signed their names on petitions to ensure that the excavation project will be reviewed from a safety standpoint.

Three residents pleaded during an Upland Safety Committee meeting recently to prevent the truckers from driving across Mountain Avenue's bus

Tom Danna, the city's traffic engineer, said the city and its school district will be sending letters to the Army Corps of Engineers to ask them to address that issue.

Intravaia officials organized a bus tour of the dam one morning last week to show city and county representatives. including police and firefighters, what is being done now at the 139-acre dam.

The California Highway Patrol and San Bernardino County Sheriff's departments also sent

SACH laying off workers in wake of budget woes

Faced with less revenues than budgeted, San Antonio Community Hospital officials are cutting expenses, including laying off workers.

The hospital is laying off "less than 30" of its 1,210 full-time employees in a two-week period, to make up the budget shortfall and maintain its rating in the bond market, a hospital spokewoman said recently

Exactly how many employees will be affected will depend on how many employees choose an early retirement program being offered, said Kris Isaacs, vice president of marketing. The special program is being offered to all employees who qualify.

Besides the layoffs and early retirements, Isaacs said management openings created by recent promotions or voluntary moves will not be filled.

A 38-bed nursing care unit, closed earlier, will remain so until the hospital is back to its budgeted level, she said. "(That unit's) nursing staff has been allocated to other areas of the hospital," she added.

'(Affected) employees will have the opportunity to be rehired if the budget level returns," she said. "The hospital is not losing money but we have not realized our projections."

She said she could not comment on how much of a budget shortfall the hospital faces. Hospital President Ronald L. Sackett, who could comment

Hospital official: Ample layoff warning was given

By Kathy Betts

"Who will be next?" is a question everyone is asking at San Antonio Community Hospital after layoffs were announced recently, a top official admits.

Hospital President Ronald L. Sackett, however, noted that this fear is "normal" during such situations, and he stressed the threat of potential layoffs had circulated at San Antonio Community for about two months.

An undisclosed number of employees received two weeks' pay with their termination notices Sept. 8. so they could immediately start looking for other work, a hospital spokeswoman said.

The "worst scenario" is that the hospital will lay off close to 30 of its 1,210 fulltime employees during the next two weeks to make up for a budget shortfall and maintain its rating in the bond market, said Kris Isaacs, vice president of marketing.

Costly new technology and new programs, planned for a two- to three-year expansion project, also contributed to the decision to cut back financially, Sackett said.

He added reimbursement by Medi-Cal, Medicare and health insurance companies is worsening.

Early retirement programs being offered to the hospital's 80 eligible workers who are 60 and older, with no minimum time of service, will offset the layoff figure, Isaacs said.

As of Sept. 11, 10 employees had accepted the early retirement package, she said, adding that workers have until the end of September to decide.

In addition to layoffs and early retirement programs, Isaacs said three management openings will not be filled.

Most, if not all, employees in the hospital's estimated 30 departments have met with their directors to learn about the "downsizing program,"

Sale of housing bonds are sought in Upland

By Kathy Betts

Waiting lists of up to six years for Upland's subsidized housing programs are prompting city officials to seek the sale of bonds to buy another 500 units for its low- and moderate-income residents

City officials hope that an indirect effect of that purchase. anticipated for January, will be to drive out drug dealers.

During an informal meeting with historic homeowners recently, City Manager Ray Silver said that the housing authority was "considering buying up apartments to kick out drug dealers, literally.

Silver's comment evoked residents' complaints that the City Council has approved construction of too many apartments in the south end of town, which they believe had spawned crime

Silver said cities are required by the state to provide a certain amount of affordable housing for its low- to moderate-income residents. The Upland Housing Authority and the Planning Department are working on revising the city's housing element to meet those requirements, he said

'We know it's not in the interest of the community (to have so many apartments). because they cause a lot of problems and cost a lot of money (in public services)."

Since 1940, the Upland Housing Authority has been landlord to nearly 500 qualifying low-income residents in the 100unit Los Olivos project at 1226 N. Campus Ave., said director Sam Szabo.

Tenant background checks, approved by the state 10 years ago, has enabled the families and senior citizens to live there peacefully. Before then, she said bad tenants would bring out police in packs and there would dollar expansion project beginning this year.

San Antonio Community. Upland's largest employer, will open a new cardiaccatheterization lab with openheart surgery capability in October, Isaacs said.

The subsequent two- to three-year expansion project - a twostory addition with a partial third floor — will consist of a 33-bed maternity ward that has 18 rooms equipped for labor, delivery, recovery and after-birth services; an eight-bassinet, neonatal intensive care unit and two operating/delivery rooms.

The budget reductions were officially announced in a singlepage press release attributed to

In his press release, Sackett said "the downsizing program" was necessary because the hospital's growth "has not been as rapid as expected" this year.

which will affect all departments, she said.

But no registered nurses will be laid off, nor will any doctors, who are not permanent hospital employees but are under contract. The hospital has hired permanent nurses in the last month and 15 were in orientation last week, Sackett said.

The number of those seeking hospitalization, required for most major surgeries, has dropped rather than the number of those seeking out-patient care, he said, calling it a statewide trend.

'This is the first time we've had to do this," Sackett said of the cutbacks.

representatives since they have beefed up patrols after hearing residents' complaints for the last six months.

Due to the size of the excavation work, Intravaia's four to six trucks on the project have been supplemented by Aman Bros., which has contracted with an Inglewood-based truck broker for another 32 trucks.

Frank Ehrig, operations manager for Aman, acknowleged that the intensive excavation work "is a sensitive issue."

In response to residents accusations that the project is merely a money-maker, Ehrig said Aman Bros. "is still in the red" after a year of work.

He cited $750,000 Aman has paid for a new road that replaced one closer to residents farther north in the dam. He admitted that trucks also can now enter and leave the dam more rapidly.

He and other officials cited the additional measures being taken to ward off complaints. These included prohibiting trucks from leaving the dam before 7 a.m. and after 4 p.m., reducing Mountain Avenue's truck speed limit in the county from 45 to 30 mph and doing away with Saturday material removal

In addition, truck drivers are prohibited from using "loud" down-shifting gears before 9 a.m. and are assigned certain streets to spread out the traffic.

Supervisors from Intravaia and Aman also are patrolling Mountain, Benson and Euclid avenues daily to see that the truckers are using their assigned streets; are driving safely on the sometimes narrow, winding roads; and are not spilling any of their loads, officials said.

They noted that violators of these provisions will lose their driving privileges.
